POLITICS TO END IN CHURCH ELECTIONS

MODERATOR AND OTHERS OF INFLUENCE SUPPORT PLAN

Amendment Would Require the Direct Action of Presbyteries—Time Has Come to Eliminate the Turmoil and Strife That Have Marred Elections in Recent Years.

A fight to "take the election of the moderator out of politics" will be launched before the Presbyterian general assembly.

Frankly avowing that an intolerable situation has been growing thru an increasing tendency to "play politics" which has crept into the pre-assembly activities noticeably during the last few years, leaders in the movement now are engaged in drawing up an overture to be presented during the coming days of the session.

The overture is being drawn by Dr. Hugh Kerr Thompson of Pittsburgh, president of the board of Christian education and Dr. J. M. Broady of Birmingham, one of the commissioners from Alabama.

It is proposed to take the election of moderator out of the hands of the general assembly and place it in the hands of the synods or presbyteries following to a certain degree the method pursued by the Scotch and Irish Presbyterian churches.

This would necessitate a constitutional amendment sanctioning the change and would require direct action by the presbyteries. The authority possessed by the present general assembly is limited to adoption of an overture to the presbyteries urging that such an amendment be made.

No definite plan has yet been evolved, but the idea involved has been endorsed by a number of prominent leaders of the church, including the newly elected moderator himself, Dr. Charles R. Erdman.

In a statement Dr. Erdman said:

"The method of electing the moderator of the assemblies in Scotland and Ireland seems to me preferable to that which maintains in America. I would be heartily in favor of a movement which might aid to formulate plans for introducing into our church law some provision which might make it possible for the presbyteries or synods to elect the moderator in anticipation of any coming assembly."

The political atmosphere which has been cast around the general assembly elections in recent years was directly recognized by Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of Wooster college and a past moderator in a statement approving the idea involved.

"I am in favor of the idea," he said. "I have not thought far enough to advance any definite plan but I feel that the time has come to eliminate the turmoil and strife and politics that have marred the elections, particularly for the last three years. I believe that it is time to restore to the opening day communion the devotional spirit that pervaded it in the past and get away from the undercurrent of tension and strife by which it is now marred."

A number of others high up in church councils regard the idea as "worthy of the most careful consideration. Among these are Dr. S. S. Palmer of Broad street Presbyterian church and Dr. Ross Stevenson president of Princeton theological seminary both past moderators.

NEW MACHINE COOKS WEEDS ON D. T. AND I.

Ford Invention Being Tried Out in Fayette County— Clears Right of Way.

A new weed "Cooker" is being used by the Ford railroad for destroying all weeds and grass in the roadbed, and this unusual piece of machinery is accompanied by a grader and ditcher, all now being used in Fayette county.

This unusual piece of machinery reached Jeffersonville Wednesday evening, from Detroit to Ironton, and Thursday morning started the slow trip toward this city, literally cooking all weeds as it came, grading the roadbed and cutting ditches where such work was necessary.

The grader is in front of the engine and smooths away all rough places in the embankment at the side of the road, leaving it uniform.

The "cooker" which consists of a series of steam pipes with small openings which permit escape of steam in the form of a spray, is attached back of the engine. A spray of live steam is showered upon the roadbed as the outfit moves slowly along, killing all living plants, ants and other insects, in its path. In this way the roadbed is freed of weeds and grass without the necessity of digging them out.

Quite a number of men are in the crew accompanying the device, and after they pass over the road it presents a much better appearance.

The outfit travels at the rate of ten or eleven miles each day.

PASSES TESTS FOR BAR

Plodiv, Bulgaria.—Effective use of conscript labor is being made by the Bulgarian government in reforestation. The program for this year covers virtually the entire country, and includes the Balkan mountains in Bulgarian territory.

Miscue on Busses

Berlin.—Berlin has found, as a result of numerous accidents, its motor busses are topheavy. The authorities are now considering a lower vehicle, with side instead of rear doors, and a covered roof to give shelter in rainy weather.

Celebrating Anniversary of Oklahoma's Rush

The Indian section of the "Thirty-sixth birthday" parade into Oklahoma City, celebrating the anniversary of the great land rush when the former Indian territory was opened to homesteading in 1889. The redskins in this parade are descendants of the tribesmen whose lands were given to the whites when Oklahoma was cut out of "The Nations," or Indian territory.

DIED SUDDENLY

Mrs. William Phillips Passed Away Friday Afternoon— Funeral Sunday.

Henrietta Phillips was found dead in bed at her home near Fox, Jackson township, Friday afternoon. She had eaten her dinner with the family and had lain down for a rest and quietly passed away and when visited by a member of the household she was cold in death.

She was the daughter of Hiram and Mary Jane Bateman and was born in Pickaway county on the 19th day of April, 1857, and is the last of her family of seven children.

On the first day of April, 1877, she was united in marriage to William Phillips, who survives. To this union were born two children; Mrs. Cora Grice and Mrs. Rosa Petty, who have preceded her to the great beyond. She leaves ten grandchildren to many of whom she had been "mother."

Early in life she united with the Presbyterian church and her funeral rites will be conducted by Rev. F. E. Logee. Services will be from the home near Fox Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock Central Standard time and interment in Jackson township cemetery.

Reported Officially Dead, Vet Claims to Live

Minneapolis, Minn.—A report by the district office here of the United States veterans' bureau declaring that Arthur Frazier, mystery man of the World war, is dead, has been sent to the veterans' bureau headquarters at Washington, D. C.

At the same time, his brother, Earl Frazier, Lookout, S. D., was at Rochester, Minn., checking up details in the interests of his parents, who contend that a man known as Arthur Lopez is Arthur Frazier, although Lopez confessed to Department of Justice officials he is not Frazier and then repudiated that confession.

More than a score of former members of D company, the old National Guard unit of Rochester, of which Arthur was a member, met at Rochester and Lopez talked about days "over there" with most of his former "buddies," who said after the meeting they were convinced that Lopez is Frazier.

C. D. Hibbard, district manager of the veterans' bureau here, sent the findings to Washington. The report states Arthur Lopez, who claims he is the South Dakota soldier, is not that man. Frazier was killed in France in 1918, according to War department records.

Members of the United States district attorney's office expressed the opinion that Lopez has violated no federal law in posing as Frazier.

Miss Mary Childers, of Ashville, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rife, was returned home. She was accompanied by Mrs. Rife and son, Richard, who will spend the day with relatives.

HOME BURGLARIZED.

The home of Elmer Delong, 223 Logan street, was entered by a burglar some time during Friday night. One of his daughters saw the man when he entered the home thru a screen door. He crawled on the floor, took a pair of trousers from a chair, searched them and took a watch and a dollar in money therefrom. She said that she could have reached him with her hand from her bed but was too frightened to make a noise. She claims the intruder was a negro.

OPPONENTS OF GASOLINE TAX STILL FIGHTING

Probably Not Very Much Substance in Their Latest Contention.

The gasoline tax law probably will stand regardless of whether Senator Roy J. Gillen is ruled out as a member of the Ohio senate, lawyers said Friday. Gillen's vote, which decided the issue, was being questioned by opponents of the tax.

Opponents of the gas tax will argue in their attack on the constitutionality of the law that it never was legally enacted, because Gillen was holding two jobs at the same time.

The supreme court has maintained a "hands off" policy with regard to the internal affairs of the lawmaking bodies of Ohio in the past. It may or may not decide that Gillen's vote counts for nothing, during the past session, but precedent seems to indicate that the vote is legal.

Senator Gillen was seated by the senate and recognized as a member and his record probably will stand, regardless of subsequent action. Former Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan said Friday night. He was at least a de facto member and was recognized as such on the floor. Mr. Hogan said. The law in question was declared passed by the presiding officer.

The court has not intervened in such cases in the past. Mr. Hogan asserted and is not likely to throw out the law on this ground. At the same time the argument is advanced by friends of the law that there were plenty of votes available in the senate for passage of the bill, and that it apparently could have been passed regardless of the presence of Senator Gillen. Someone else would have voted for it if he had not, they say.

Two sections of the constitution are involved, it appears. One is that upon which the supreme court ruled that Senator Gillen is legally mayor of Wellston and that if there is any question of eligibility it relates to his membership in the general assembly. The whole tone of the decision casts doubt on his eligibility as a senator.

There is another section which provides that the general assembly has the right to pass upon the qualification of its own members. This was done at the beginning of the session and Senator Gillen was seated by the senate and recognized as a member throughout the session.

J. F. Atwood, attorney for the automobile association, is of the opinion that Gillen's vote should not count, since he has been established as mayor of Wellston by the supreme court. He bases his statement on the constitutional provision which precludes from membership in the general assembly anyone holding any other lucrative position under the state constitution.

The point will be fought in a case now pending in Franklin county common pleas court in which the constitutionality of the law levying a 2 cents a gallon tax on gasoline used on the highways is questioned.

FORD PLANTS SHATTER PRODUCTION RECORDS
Turn Out 7858 Cars and Trucks In Single Working Day—Excludes Foreign Shops.

Detroit, May 21.—The Ford Motor Co. set a new record for production Tuesday when its assembly plants turned out 7,858 Ford cars and trucks in the working day. This record is for the U. S. plants alone, and does not include foreign plants and associated companies or the Ford Motor Co., of Canada, Ltd.

An interesting thing in connection with this production is that the company is exceeding its most careful estimates for May. Current Ford bill boards, which were prepared 60 days ago and carry the message, "7,000 more since yesterday," but in actual output the company exceeded this by 850. Production of the company has been steadily increasing during the last few weeks, due to the growing spring business, and new output records have been frequent, but none approaching within 100 of the figures of Tuesday.

Napoleon's Original Tomb.
The original tomb of Napoleon at St. Helena has fallen into a state of disrepair since the body was removed to state to the Invalides in Paris, according to a letter received from a recent visitor to that remote island. "I walked the five and one-half miles up-hill to Longwood, Napoleon's old home," the writer says, "and inspected his much-neglected tomb, which is down in a deep corner of a deep valley—just a slab covered with dirty whitewash—no inscription whatever. The grass around was unkempt, and surrounded by a circle, about twenty paces in diameter, of tall trees, and there was nothing anywhere to tell the visitor when the body was removed or to whom the old tomb had belonged."

Grotesque Ice Plants

Formed by Jack Frost
On cold, frosty mornings at Rock Lanesome, when films of shining crystal cover brooks and sphagnum bogs, old stumps are frosted with white and black loam along the trails is thrust up by underlying needles of ice, frost flowers bloom in lovely fantastic shapes about the root stalks of sere hellanthemum canadense or frost weed. These are not yellow flowers of the rock rose but masses of ice crystals shot out, woven and spun by Jack Frost's sprites during the night from the cracked root-stalks of the weeds just above the ground, says the Birmingham Age-Herald.

Frost weed is the best-known plant from which these ice masses spring, but is not the only one. Frost flowers are found about the feet of thirty or more different plants, herbaceous annuals and perennials, and sometimes trees.

When the life in the stem creeps down into the roots, leaving the stalk sere but roots in the warm ground still alive, osmotic pressure continues pumping water up the dead stem where, freezing, it bursts the stem and the escaping sap, congealing in the open air, forms lovely crystals and convolutions called frost flowers.

People like your ambition if it is entirely out of their field.

Habit is what makes one come down to the shop on his days off.

Winter's fault is that it has no such lazy pastime as going fishing.

Bright Velveteen for Short Coats

Little Garments Worn Over Crepe de Chine and Flannel Frocks.

Now and again fashion displays certain inconsistencies that seem a bit astounding, but this only proves that everything is grist that comes to the mill of the mode, and there is nothing that cannot be incorporated into fashion if it is done with skill and knowledge.

Who would have dared a few years ago to utilize chintz and cretonne for costume purposes, to use velvet for bathing suits and silk fabrics for sports, to consider hats of felt not as a seasonal mode but for all times and all occasions! Yet these are phases of the mode which have become so definitely established that one takes them quite as a matter of course.

The winter witnessed a revival of velveteen and the great success was a little two-piece frock with its circular skirt and boyish overblouse. That the possibilities of this becoming material are not exhausted is shown by new models that have been introduced. They consist of little short coats which are made of velveteen in bright colors and are worn over white crepe de chine and flannel frocks or dresses that harmonize in tone.

Topcoats considerably longer are fashioned of velveteen and corduroy in natural tones of gray and beige and are lined with kasha. Then, too, there are ensembles which show a coat of velveteen banded with crepe de chine and frock of the silk trimmed with velveteen. They are extremely attractive and have been quite generally accepted by the best dressed women.

Scarf Hat Innovation for Early Summer Wear

The real innovation of the early summer may be the scarf hat. With nonchalant indifference to the type of hat—brimmed, turban or cloche—the scarf is added with equal success. It seems a happy combination, since the scarf has become a significant feature in the fashionable ensemble.

A hat that is both smart and serviceable is made of fine navy blue straw. A bit of fancy flowered ribbon is laid obliquely across the front of the crown, and a scarf of dark blue crepe is wound around the hat and fastened gracefully in detachable fashion at the back. In the popular Havana brown a hat of close-woven straw braid has at one side a motif of conventional floral pattern outlined with gilt, which is repeated at one end of a long scarf of the brown crepe, lined with a lighter shade. A black milan with the visor front brim and abbreviated back has attached a short, wide scarf with rounded ends of black satin faced with scarlet crepe. A cluster of crimson silk roses nestles close against the back of the hat and another is placed at the crossed ends of the scarf on one shoulder. Five pretty flat roses in general shades of chiffon trim the back of another small hat of black milan, and three of these decorate each end of a narrow scarf of black satin.

The Hatpin Is Ornamental

The vogue of hatpins, the small, ornamental pins that serve as the chief, often the only, trimming on the sports and plain street hats, continues. There are among these some novelties in which the ornaments are of straw or wool or of ribbon tightly rolled into balls. These are equally attractive on the little cloth, ribbon or straw hats, newest among the spring styles in millinery. The jeweled pins suitable for the dressier hats are made in the form of brooches, the latest being studded solidly with rhinestones and colored glass or semi-precious stones in designs of flowers, birds, butterflies and little animals.

Dancers Emulate Animals

Not everybody who "fox-trots" knows why that particular dance movement is so called. It originated in the United States, and is supposed to be descriptive of the fox in search of his prey, and it was from the fancied similarity of the dance steps that the fox-trot took its name. The dance is really a much-altered descendant of the old polka which also originated in America, and which had already led to quite a number of new steps, christened after animals which they were supposed to imitate—as, for instance, the bunny hug and the turkey trot.

People can be so effusively gay as to keep you at arm's length with it.

Some Snappy Comment on "God Old Times"

"Another learned professor has uttered the customary blah to get attention, and by so doing has got at least mine," grumbled old Gauntton Grimm. "He moans, alas, that the traditional home in which the father was a patriarch and the master of the family, is gone. I used to know several such homes, where the father was a tyrant, stern, conceited and opinionated, pleased to believe that women should not care for gauds and fripperies and children should be seen and not heard. Those old oppressors were as stingy as stone soup, as merciless as snapping turtles, and prided themselves on their piety because they made everybody else miserable for the glory of God. "Eh-yah! That sort of a home has practically disappeared. Gone, too, is the bastinado, the ducking stool, the knout, the stocks, the practice of beating the evil spirits out of lunatics with clubs and of consigning to everlasting torment everybody who does not believe as I do. And good riddance to bad rubbish, says I!"—Kansas City Star.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

AMUSEMENTS

Harrison Ford, considered one of the finest leading men in motion pictures was loaned to Howard Estabrook for his Associated Exhibitors' production, "The Price of a Party" coming to the Met theater Monday. Ford is well known to film fans and is under contract with Cosmopolitan pictures. Before entering the cast of "The Price of a Party" he completed "Janice Meredith" with Marion Davies. Others in the new picture are Hope Hampton, Dagmar Godowsky, Arthur Edmund Carew and Mary Aster. Charles Giblyn handled the megaphone for the production.

The Meed of Praise.

Do we praise children enough? They need praise. No doubt about praising them enough. One teacher makes a practice of sending "good" notes if after a "bad" note there has been any improvement. One had a very unexpected result. The mother was so accustomed to getting the "bad" variety, that when the boy drew out an official-looking envelope, without waiting for explanations she "landed on him" to quote the deeply-injured boy. In the melee that ensued the note was lost. Only a personal visit from the teacher could convince her. The note was depicted and from its proud position in the Bible is shown to the doubting relatives who used to make life pleasant by prophesying the penitentiary for George.

And Yet That "Roll" Had Seemed So Real!

The mind is capable of embracing almost any belief or conviction. And the psychoanalysts tell us some of these are revealed in dreams. Strangely, too, they claim we often forget our most important dreams. Perhaps some psychoanalyst can explain this story, which is vouched for by Tim Crowley. A friend of Tim's had a falling for suss. For two years his losses at this card game were the cause of a regular Saturday night squabble with his wife. But every tide turns some time, and one night Jim arrived home with a fine swagger and $1,800 in bills. His long-suffering spouse immediately seized the roll.

"I am going to keep this for all you have lost," she announced determinedly.

Jim had nothing to say, but noticed that she put the money under the pillow.

After they had retired Jim began to think how, instead of winning $1,800, he might have won $18,000 by playing his luck stronger. The idea gained such strength that he slipped the money from under the head of the sleeping Mrs. Jim and with it sneaked back to the game. A few hours later he returned, having lost all, and crawled into bed again without disturbing his mate.

He had been asleep only a short time when his wife shook him. "Jim, get up!" she said.

"What for?" he asked.

"I want you to get up early to take that money to the bank for me."

"What money?" he asked, feigning sleepiness while his mind worked fast.

"Why, the money you won last night," she replied. "You aren't awake yet."

"You're talking crazy, woman," said Jim, sitting up suddenly. "I didn't win any money last night. You've been dreaming."

Mrs. Jim strode to the bed, lifted her pillow and a strange look spread over her face. As she walked away she muttered: "Who would believe a dream could seem so true?"—New York World.

Good Story, Anyway

The popular story of how the Spanish province of Andalusia acquired its name is told by Eleanor Elsnor in one of her travel books. "Early explorers entering the province met a peasant indolently driving a mule over a pass; they begged him to tell them the name of this sunny and pleasant land, presumably in a language or dialect of which he understood never a word. He looked them over, silent and smiling in the usual Spanish fashion, then, turning to his mule, called out, 'Anda, Lucia,' which simply meant 'Go on, Lucia'; but the strangers took it to be the name of the country, which they registered on their rough charts as Andalusia."

this oven works like a double boiler

You've used double boilers, of course, and know how safely cereals and other delicate foods can be cooked in them. The famous Fresh Air Oven of the Estate Gas Range is built exactly like a double boiler, and distributes heat in the same way. No more "humps"—no more scorching—instead, pies and cakes and cookies that melt in the mouth. It's different—this Estate oven—but it's founded on a principle as old as the double boiler. LITHOPOLIS

To Be Scene of Dedication of the Magnificent Wagnall's Memorial.

On Sunday, May thirtieth, Memorial Day, the little village of Lithopolis will be the scene of the dedication of the beautiful new half-million dollar Wagnall's Memorial.

The exercises will begin at 1 o'clock on that day with the unveiling of the memorial tablet in the main entranceway by Mrs. Mabel Wagnall Jones who is the generous donor of the beautiful building. It was made in memory of her parents, the late Adam W. Wagnalls and wife whose remains are interred in the cemetery of this village, where they were children and grew up together and where a part of their married life was spent.

Mrs. Jones, an author, has contributed toward making Lithopolis famous by her book entitled, "Letters to Lithopolis from O. Henry to Mabel Wagnalls."

Edwin Markham, the poet, who delivered the eulogy for the late Adam W. Wagnalls at his funeral last fall in Lithopolis, will be the speaker on this occasion and other noted speakers who will address the crowds on Memorial Day will be John Ward Dunsmore, the artist, and Dr. Frank Vizitelly, the lexicographer and author of the Standard Dictionary.

In addition to a wonderful library, auditorium and community center, the building will house two special rooms which will perpetuate the original works of two of the speakers of the day—Edward Markham and John Ward Dunsmore.

The building, which is a beautiful structure in English Tudor-Gothic architecture, is built of stone which was quarried by hand from the ancient limestone quarries at Lithopolis.

The Wagnalls family and guests will arrive in Canal Winchester in a special car from where they will be conveyed to Lithopolis by motor.

Famous Baltimore.

The world's first telegram was received in Baltimore May 24, 1844, at old Mount Clair station. Its contents were: "From Washington to Baltimore. What God hath wrought!" The same city had the first public building to be lighted by gas. It owned the first gas company founded in America, June 17, 1816. Of all this we are reminded in the Popular Science Monthly. Baltimore also was the first city to raise a monument to George Washington. It built the first clipper ships. The first merchant submarine to cross the Atlantic, the Deutschland, docked in Baltimore. America's first railroad ran from Baltimore to Ellicott Mills in 1830. And it is the birthplace of "The Star-Spangled Banner." Verily, Baltimore is "on the map."

Bacon's Rebellion in 1678.

In 1678, on April 20, Bacon's rebellion began. The colonists of Virginia were being constantly harassed by the hostile Indian bands, who descended on their settlements to plunder and kill. The people asked Gov. Berkeley to allow them to form a guard led by Nathaniel Bacon, a young planter, for the defense of their homes. Berkeley refused, calling the request a presumption on the part of the common people. In defiance of the governor's order, the volunteers set out under Bacon against the Indians. Bacon was declared a traitor and ordered to be executed for his insubordination, but he fell ill of a fever and died during the expedition.

As She Sized Him Up

Ambassador Richard Washburn Child, sailing homeward on the George Washington, told a story about a corpulent statesman.

"This corpulent person," he said, "once made a speech before a Sunday school. He talked about rewards and punishments—the rewards that are the meed of a good life, the punishments that a bad life entails.

"And now, children," he yelled dramatically, as he whacked the lectern with his enormous hand—"now, children, what would happen to me after I died if I led a bad life?"

A naughty little girl piped in a shrill voice: "The fat would be in the fire for fair!" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

These days of short dresses, sheer silk hose and up-to-the-minute styles make life miserable for many of the sterner sex. A sophomore at the university was reprimanding a frosh for not speaking when they passed. "Didn't see you," the freshman explained. "Why, I walked within a foot of you," the upper classman protested. "Gosh! You musta been the guy with the girl who had on those open-work stockings," replied the accused youth.—Columbus Dispatch.

MACK PARRETT

BOARD FALLS ON MAN'S HEAD

C. O. Eyche, Clarksburg, Injured While at Work on New Building At Paper Mill.

C. O. Eyche, Clarksburg, was taken to the city hospital Thursday morning for observation, following an injury to his head sustained when a two by four piece of lumber fell on him while at work on the color mixing room at the Mead Paper mill this morning.

Mr. Eyche was at work on the ground when the board fell from the second floor. Dr. Hoyt was called to the scene of the accident and advised that Eyche be sent to the local hospital where his injuries may be observed and checked in case something unforeseen should arise.

The injured man was employed by the Managing Engineering and Development company which is in charge of the erection of several new buildings at the Mead plants. This accident, therefore, does not lower the record of the Mead company in its contest with the Wisconsin paper mill.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

ADJUSTING THE ANCIENT GRUDGE

By GRACE CANFIELD

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"NOW look here, dad," protested Ethan, "what's the use of being pig-headed? Just give me one honest reason for being so set against Tim Bailey."

Slow red surged to the forehead which Carter Enright's 30 years at sea had tanned to a deep bronze. "We always have been enemies," he replied. "Fifteen years ago he stole on my land in the dead of night and cut down three pine trees. Fine and straight they were," mourned the sailor, "fit masts for three tall ships. And he cut them into firewood!"

"Fifteen years!" began Ethan, and stopped. It was no use talking to his father in this mood. Sighing, he left the room.

Carter Enright did not notice. His mind was with his old enemy. "I told Tim Bailey 15 years ago," he muttered to himself, "that if he or any of his set foot on my land I would shoot at sight. I meant it and I mean it still."

"Dad," Elsie Bailey twined coaxing arms about her father's neck. "Why don't you and Mr. Enright become friends?" It's perfectly silly for two grown men like you to hold a grudge."

Tim Bailey laughed, as he always did when this subject was mentioned. "I'm not holding a grudge. I cut three pine trees off the edge of my land, and Carter claimed they were his. When I wouldn't pay up, he threatened to shoot at sight. I still won't pay up, and I happen to know that he keeps his gun oiled."

"Oh! Then you must pay up," decided Elsie. "What would be the cost of three pine trees—"

"With interest?" she continued calmly, "be to you?"

He shook his head. "They were my trees, you know. Besides, there is a pride about these things."

"Pride!" Elsie cried out in disappointment. "And would you let your pride spoil my happiness?"

In great distress Tim Bailey tried to comfort her. "And how can the quarrel of two old men affect your happiness, child?" he asked gently.

"Because Ethan and I—" A sob completed the sentence.

"Well, child," he spoke briskly, "run along, and I'll see what I can do. I would never do to have Carter shoot you—and he would."

Elsie kissed him delightedly. "Oh, dad, I knew you would find a way!" For over an hour Bailey sat where she had left him, before the open fire.

Two days later, by Ethan, Tim sent a message to his ancient foe. "Ask Carter Enright if a full payment, with interest, for the pine trees I took from his land will make him forget his enemy." As Ethan left, Tim muttered to himself. "They were on my land, though."

The next day came the reply. "If Tim Bailey will admit that he stole three pine trees from my land, and if he will pay for them in full with accrued interest, I will forgive him." They were the same autocratic terms, stated years ago, with which his enemy had consistently refused to comply.

It was a bitter pill for Bailey to swallow, but he saw certain compensations ahead. "It shall be done," he said, and Elsie was radiant with joy.

Carter Enright was nonplused at all this. If he and Bailey could become friends, what might not happen? He was even a little disappointed in this unexpected weakening of the old feud. At first he suspected a trap, but Ethan reassured him eagerly.

"He gave in because of Elsie and me," he confessed, meekly, but he did not quail under the old sailor's fierce glance.

"Thundering brimstone!" began Carter Enright, and stopped. Why should he mind the marriage more than Tim Bailey? Could he be less forgiving? He sighed deeply, and, with the sigh, submitted.

"Oh, but 'twas a man's quarrel," he mourned. "I shall miss it sorely, Ethan."

"'Twas a bonny grudge," regretted the sailor. "I have not set foot on those boundaries for 15 years." He fell into silence.

A month later Ethan and Elsie were married, urged on to haste by the fear that the old quarrel might be renewed.

After the young couple had left town a note was delivered to the old seaman. Unbelieving, Enright read the words twice, and in such a rage as he had not known since his seafaring days, rushed out of doors. Directly in rear of the house was piled row upon row of pine lengths, cut for firewood. His vocabulary for once failing him, Enright turned again to the note.

"Here is the wood," it read. "It has been in my sheds for 15 years, and I'm glad to get rid of it. For interest I have added one more pine tree."

Tricked! He had been cheated into making peace with a lifelong enemy, and had given his word. He stopped, and read the note again. One more pine tree! Filled with the blackest suspicion, he strode to the garage and drove out to look at the boundary he had left to overseers for 15 years. There it was. Surrounded by white chips was the stump of a newly felled tree.

The old man hastily headed for home, but he was swearing no longer. Instead, he laughed aloud, once, just as Tim Bailey had done. This gratuitous insult had filled him with new life. The old feud was done with, but the new one had begun. A bonny grudge!

PROSPECTIVE BRIDES, HERE ARE FOUR APPROPRIATE FROCKS FOR TROUSSEAU

HERE are four frocks, sufficient and appropriate for a short wedding trip. A chic tailored dress of dark material; a dainty evening frock; a smart light silk afternoon dress, and a trim sports costume.

The tailored dress is shown in the photo at the right. It is of deep brown crepe, made along severely straight lines and trimmed in matching velvet. A splendid dress for motoring and traveling. It is accompanied by a hat of lighter brown silk crepe, with upturned brim of brown velvet or straw.

The evening dress is a youthful thing of pale blue taffeta, shrouded in fuchsia tulle and trimmed in purple and fuchsia pansies. The evening wrap accompanying this is of matching taffeta, with ruffled collar of taffeta, tulle and pansies.

These two dresses are shown on Esther Ralston, a featured player in Herbert Brenon's Paramount picture, "The Little French Girl."

The next two dresses are shown in the sketches at the left. The first is a Lanvin model of polka-dotted material. The body of the dress employs a silk of moderate sized dots, with inserts of larger dotted material around the bottom. A slight bloused effect is used, and a very low, narrow belt. The sleeves are tight fitting and long.

and the neck is a V, with long tie-cuffs of plain silk. The sports frock is of Pervenche blue kasha cloth and has a jumper waist and finely pleated skirt.

This is a handsome quartette of frocks, representing the simplest and best that the year has to offer, and forming an attractive trousseau. Polka-dots, foiled, kasha cloth, crepe and taffeta—Pervenche blue, brown, fuchsia and lettuce green. (Yes, the polka-dotted dress is lettuce green.) And in line the offering is just as varied. The tailored dress is straight, the evening dress full, the afternoon frock flared, the sports frock both straight and full. All are short in length and long on smartness.

YESTERDAY'S SOLUTION—

Tomorrow another Cross-word Puzzle will be published along with solution of today's problem.

SILVER FOXES

An attempt to raise silver foxes in mountain altitudes is now being made in France. Hitherto it was assumed that skins of the finest texture, worth more than their weight in gold, could be grown only in northern latitudes where the winters are not only very cold but very long. The French National Society of Acclimation has established a silver fox farm in the French Alps on the theory that the temperature there would be just as suitable as those of northern Canada. An announcement states that preliminary results are satisfactory.

Flowers Figure in Menu

The petals of the rose, violet and jasmine are used occasionally in dishes in at least one big hotel in London, while in France the petals of orange and lemon blossoms, and of the white locust flower are used freely in food.

SEEK HARDY WHEAT TO RESIST WINTER

Crops Men At Columbus Hope Hybrid Variety May Solve Problem.

A wheat that will resist winters like the one just past is now the hope of farm crops experimenters at the Ohio State University. Even the best varieties were winter-killed this past year, particularly in the southern counties of the state.

Several hybrid varieties, developed by the farm crops men and growing on the experimental plots at the university farm, have come through the winter successfully, while certain of the standard commercial varieties, planted in the same soil and at the same time last fall, have winter-killed. In all, 450 varieties of wheat are being grown at Columbus for comparison as to yield, winter resistance, and disease resistance.

A plot of Trumbull wheat was used as a check for each plot of a hybrid variety, the farm crops men explain. Although Trumbull has won popularity in Ohio because of its yielding power it did not winter very well. On the experimental plots the Trumbull was winter-killed, almost without exception, while many of the new hybrids came through and are now growing thriftily.

"But there is no reason for abandoning Trumbull," says Dr. J. B. Park, head of the farm crops department. "Trumbull is one of our best existing varieties. It will remain so until we can get another variety, perhaps one of these hybrids, that will both yield well and resist the winter and disease. Finding that variety will take several years."

WHAT THE NEW FISHING LAW REALLY MEANS

Provisions of The Enactment Which Goes Into Effect in July.

So many inquiries are being received daily about the provisions of the new fishing law that goes into effect in July that court officials have decided to make public the full provisions of the law.

It is one to amend Section 1430 of the General Code of Ohio, relative to the fishing license. It reads in entirety as follows:

Fishing license. No person shall take or catch any fish by angling with reel and rod in any of the waters of the state of Ohio, or engage in fishing with reel and rod in such waters without first having procured a license so to do. Said license shall be procured in the manner provided for taking out hunting and trapping licenses. The applicant shall pay to the clerk having authority to issue such license the sum of two dollars, if a non resident and the sum of one dollar, if a resident of Ohio, as a license fee therefor, together with the sum of 25 cents if a non resident and ten cents if a resident as a fee to the clerk; provided, however, that any person under the age of eighteen years may take or catch fish by angling without a license. The provisions of the hunting and trapping license fee section of this state in so far as the same are applicable to the license fees herein provided for shall apply to all licenses under this section; provided, however that in addition to the clerk of courts, village and township clerk, the chief of the fish and game division be empowered to permit responsible persons in each municipality village and township to issue fishing licenses. All money derived from such licenses are hereby appropriated for the use of the director of agriculture for the protection, propagation and preservation of fish, including the establishment, operation and maintenance of fish hatcheries, the leasing, purchasing or otherwise acquiring title to land for said hatcheries, constructing fish chutes and dams and such other methods of fish propagation and fish culture as shall be approved by the said director.

Owners of lands over, thru upon or along which any water shall flow or stand, together with the members of the immediate families of such owners, shall have the right to take or catch fish of the kind lawfully permitted to be taken or caught therefrom, without procuring the license herein provided for; and provided that such exemption from the license herein provided for shall extend to tenants actually residing upon such lands, and to the members of the immediate families of such tenants. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars and the cost of the prosecution.
